My College Career Mission Statement

During my time at Nathan Hale High School in Seattle, I've discovered I have an interest in the human mind and why it behaves the way it does. I'm also interested in learning more about social issues like homelessness and hunger and how to have a positive impact in those areas. However, I am open to a variety of learning opportunities including science, business, and the arts. But most of all I look forward to working with my professors and classmates in a productive and supportive learning environment. I work hard in the classroom and enjoy learning new things. On the field, I want to be both an impact player and a play-maker that will help lead my team to victory. I am a versatile player: experienced at forward, attacking midfield, and right and left wing, connecting passes and taking chances on goal. More importantly, I will strive to earn the respect of both my coaches and my teachers, and become a well-respected leader and player to my teammates on and off the field.
